

Integrity Pact Implementation Around the World

What is an Integrity Pact?

Integrity Pacts are agreements between all parties in a public tender to refrain from bribery or corruption and uphold fair competition. An independent monitor oversees the process to increase transparency and public trust and to ensure a fair process for all bidders.

Value for money in public procurement

Integrity Pacts have been used in at least 32 countries in the infrastructure, defence, health, transportation, telecommunications, education and other sectors and can be adapted to other industries. They help ensure that high-value public tenders are won by the best bidder at the right price.
